LETTER

FROM THE

Facetious Dr. T R I P E, &c.

Right Venerable,

If a ac Bickerstaff, of most memorable Countenance, does, I remember, in several of his Moral Aphorisms, make very honourable Mention of himself, for such of his Essays, as were levelled at the general Benefit of Mankind; and, upon this Head, does fairly give himself the Presence to all the Learned, his Contemporaries, from Dr. S—ft himself, even down to Poet Cr—spe of the Custom-House.

This, with due Respect to his Memory, savours somewhat more of Self-love, than cou'd be well expected from so unby as'd a Philosopher: For I can see no Reason, nor do I believe he himself cou'd, why the elaborate Productions of those who sweat hard to rescue the laudable Actions of the Town, or Corporation, where they either were born, or of which they were Inhabitants, from the Jaws of Oblivion, and transmit them with Decency to Posterity shou'd not deserve, at least, an equal Encomium.

Upon this Consideration I have, with unwearied Application, and no small Expence in Coffee and Tobacco, perused all the Neotegraphical Tracts as well Foreign as Domestick, larely published by those painful and accurate Penmen, the Newswriters, as the Vulgar term them, that I might throughly inform my felf, what Account they gave the World, of the Magnificent Reception, which the In-habitants of this Ancient and Noble City of Bath, gave to the invaluable Present, which you did them the Honour lately to make them; And see whether they handled so important a Point, with that Nicety of Truth, and Majesty of Stile, that the History of so solemn a Ceremony required. But, to my great Astonishment, and much greater Concern, I found 'em all, (to their Discredit be it spoken) as Silent upon the Matter, as if such a Thing had never been, in rerum Natura; or at least, had happen'd in the dark Days of Popery and Ignorance.

Tis true, it is hard to condemn so Numerous and so eminent a Body of Learned

Meng

Men, in some whereof, 'cis possible, it might be unpremeditated Omission: But in Orhers, especially those of our own Island, I cannot forbear thinking it was downright Spleen and Envy: And (God forgive me) I have a strong Suspicion, that my very good Friend, the indefatigable and judicious Mr. Abel, whom I look upon to be the President of all the Hebdomadal Writers of this Century, has a great deal to answer on this Head. In Love therefore to the Town of Bath, to which I have the Honour of being Physician in Ordinary: And, out of my most profound Respect, Sir, for your Venerable Person, (whose unparallel'd Bounty, I would gladly see perpetuated to all succeeding Ages) I have diligently consulted Our Publick Records, and with utmost Fidelity transcribed from them the following Copy.

Sometime about the latter

End of October, Anno 12 Reginæ Regist. Ann.
Annæ. As Mr. Mayor, Mr. ReAnnæ. Fol.
corder, the Facetious Dr. Andrew 36.

· Tripe, (meaning your most humble Servant) Mr. Lenitive the Apothecary, and several other worthy Ciri-

'zens, were, one Afternoon at the Coffeehouse, gravely discoursing of Politicks, and were insensibly fallen into a Polemical Argument, upon this intricate and important Question, Whether, in case the Pope of Rome Show'd have a Fancy to alter bis State, and take unto him a Wife, An Act of Parliament wou'd be either, anecesfary, or a Sufficient Warrant for his so doing? While the Point was discuss'd with that Solidity of Learning, and Maturity of Thought, that cou'd be expe-* Eted from a Company of fuch bright Men, especially upon so ticklish a Subject, who s shou'd come in, but Mr. Isaac Bickerstaff, Intelligencer General of the Town, by whose earnest Looks, and violent Pant-' ing for Breath, they soon perceived, that he was big with some Occurrence of Moe ment, of which he wanted to be immediately delivered.

But, before I proceed any further in this great Undertaking, I find my self oblig'd, Most Learned Sage, by the Rules of Method, to make a small Digression, in order to give you a cursory Description of the Person,

Parts, and Prosession of Mr. Isaac Bickerstaff, because I conceive it to be a Preliminary absolutely requisite towards the right Understanding of this great History, and because without such Digression (according

Letter would not make so considerable a Figure as to reach the Price of Six Pence, which however, as it is Inter nos, I desire my remain a Secret between me and may Reader.

Mr. Isaac, you must know, Sir, is much about your own Age and Size, and, if I may credit those who pretend to know you, not unlike you in the Face. He is of a Saturnine Complexion, not without some visible Indications of suffering much by the Obstructions in the Hippocondria, from whence heavy and Caliginous Fumes continually ascending to the Region of his Head, do powerfully invade the Territory of his Brain, where, meeting with little Resistance, through the too much Natural Imbecillity of the Part, they make a most sad Havock in the Glandula Pinealis. This renders him anxious all the While he is awake, disturbs him when asleep, and makes him dream of nothing else but Chains, Gallies, Gibbets, Raw-heads and Bloody. bones, by the terrifying Relation of which, he often frightens many of the Children of Her Majesty's good Subjects from their Bread and Butter.

He has uaturally a downcast foreboding Aspect, which, they of the Country here-

Manner of Staring, with his Mouth wide open, and Under-Lip propending, especially when any ways disturb'd; which is a vehement Diagnosis, that there is a great Relaxation in the Optick-Nerves, by which their Communication with the Pia Mater is become unactive, and the Poignancy of the Intellects render'd Obtuse.

He takes a great Deal of Pains to perfwade his Neighbours, that he has a very short Face, and a little flat Nose, like a diminitive Wart, in the middle of his Visage, because he was told once by a Dutch Fortune-Teller, that high hook'd Noses were very ominous, and denoted Cowardice, whereas that other Simmetry was an infallible Indication of Choler predominant, which he hopes, may upon Occasion supply his Natural Want of Courage.

His Eyes are large and prominent, too big of all Conscience, for the Conceited Narrowness of his Phiz, and have been for some Years very Subject to an Insirmity, which We Doctors call the Gutta Serena; and though he has been often told of the wonderful Cures lately persorm'd by the Famous Opthalmist Dri Henrick, all over the Kingdom, he will but calls him Quack, at the same Time, that he knows tull well, that the honest Doctor is allow'd by the College to practice, after a most rigorous Examination.

His Back, tho' not very broad, is well turn'd, and will bear a great deal: I have feen him my felf, more than once, carry a vast Load of Timber. His Legs also are tolerably substantial, and can Stride very wide upon Occasion, but the best Thing about him is a handsome Pair of Heels, which he takes special Pride to shew, not only to his Friends, but even to the very worst of his Enemies.

As to his Parts, he sets up for a Virtuoso, a Philosopher, and what not! And does not only believe it himself, but has perswaded others too, that he has a Monstrous Wit: One Day, he gave Bills about for Folks to come and see it, but unadvisedly demanding Two Pence a Piece, he was his'd, and hooted at, in a most unbecoming Manner: This made him afterwards be somewhat Cautious, how he ventured abroad with it; And it is observed that, almost ever since, all his Discourses have been gravely dull, without the least larding of Wit.

Notwithstanding this, Men of as profound Parts as himself do really allow that he has not only a Genius naturally adapted to Schemes and Projects, but was actually the First Inventer of Certain surprising Paper --- Machines, which, by only looking upon 'em, make People almost as wise as they were before, to the great Wonder and Satisfaction of all the Beholders. It was he also, that first discovered that the Chin of Man was a Musical Instrument, and taught Boys how to play upon it; a Harmony indeed altogether unknown to Apriquity. And I am credibly inform'd, that he has now almost brought to Perfection a System, for fixing the Moveable Feasts, after so wonderful a Manner, that from this present Year One Thousand Seven Hundred and Thirteen, to the Year Seventeen Thousand and Twenty Four, inclusive, Easter Day may always fall on a Sunday; which must needs be, of vast Use towards reconciling the ill natur'd Difference so long maintain'd betwixt the Julian and Gregorian Account.

He has moreover an exquisite Faculty in finding out the Harmony of Monosillables, by the help of which, he can easily multer, upon Occasion, a Power of pretThis he calls his Art of Lerology, that is, of saying a great Deal to little Purpose, and designs it for a perpetual Fund to pay his Debts with,

It is reported by some, that he has attain'd the Menstruum of Hermes; and can make the basest of Dutch-Coin, pass for true Sterling. Others will have it, that he Dreams with his Eyes open; can dissolve Ice by the help of Fire, and tell Boys by looking in their Faces, if their Notes stand awry; for which he has been reputed a Necromancer. But his Master-Talent lies in picking up, and retailing of Threadbare Stories: And it is to his wonderful Sagacity herein, that we of this Town owe the first Hints of the Death of that worshipful Knight, Sir Roger de Coverly. But there is a dreadful Missortune attends him, that as he seldom speaks Truth, so he is seldom or never believ'd; and as he not only will invent most unmerciful Relations of Matters here and there transacted, so he has another Property, that for the Heart's Blood of him, he cannot tell a Story, as it told him, but let it be never so often repeated, will be sure to endeavour to adorn it with his own Flourishes, and the the gentle Reader is often disappointed, when he thinks himself sure of knowing Something; which, whether it proceeds from any Lesion, or Desect in the Cerebellum, from a Natural Dulness of Apprehension, or a Deceptio visus of his Memory, will appear one of these Days, when his Brains come, after a decent Execution, to be dissected at Surgeon's Hall.

Altho' some invidious Persons have endeavour'd by oblique Hints, to suggest, that he is no Scholar, it is a most malicious Insinuation; for, to my own Knowledge, he went sometimes to School, when he was a Boy; and I can solemnly affirm, thar, besides a curious Dissertation, which he has lately publish'd upon the Liberty and Property of the Three great contending Rivals, WHO, THAT, and WHICH; and the entercaining Dialogues betwixt the Watchman and his Goose: This very individual Mr. Isaac Bickerstaff has actually in the Press, a most Elaborate Treatise, which must needs be of unconceivable Emolument to such of the Inhabitants of this Island, as can neither read, nor write; of which, I am told, the Generality of his Subscribers consist. In this learned Piece, 'tis said, he has demonstrated, almost Ma-

Vivacity he can abstract Acts of Parliament, and, that, to the no little Mortisication of some Nocturnal Pains-Takers about the Temple, he has made as great a Proficiency in the Law, as ever he did in Physick or Divinity, or any other Art or Science.

His Elocution is not what ought to be least admired: And, bateing that he is very apt sometimes to mistake one Thing for another, I know no Man alive will talk more of Matters altogether beyond bis Reach: Which I take to proceed from hence, that having had his first Education in a Coffee-house, where such Bright Men, as You and I did usually resort, and heard them frequently discourse of the Interest of England, Ballance, of Europe, Exorbitant Growth of France, Danger of Popery, Prerogative of the Crown, Rights of the People, Power of Parliament, Magna Charta, Religion, Liberty, Property, Commerce, Navigation, and the like, he. was so charm'd with the Sound, that without troubling his Head in the least, about the true Meaning of those Terms; he got a reasonable Quantity of 'em by Heart, which he repeats at Random in all Company: And has in a great Measure perswaded himself into a Belief, that his being fo often in the Room where these Gentlemen used to talk, is Reason enough for him to understand the Matter as well as they did. Like Bessus the Centurion, of whom a certain Author of great Antiquity, writes, that he fancied himself to be unmeasurably valiant, because he happen'd once to march along with an Army of Fifty Thousand gallant Lacedemonians. Or that other extraordinary Person, I think his name was Rhodo. montadoides mention'd somewhere by Strabo, who having but a bare promise once of seeing the Roman Senate in a full House, it so tickl'd his Fancy, that he already believed himself wise enough to prescribe Laws to the whole Empire.

I must not undertake, O wise Man, to inform you exactly, what Religion he is of; for though he'll shake the Parson of the Parish samiliarly by the hand; make him a reverend Bow as he passes by, and sollow him sometimes to the Church, yet he declares publickly, that he cannot be reconciled to the Church-Wardens, for suffering the Pulpit to stand too high, or take ther for suffering the Pew to stand by the Pulpit.

Profanencis and Immorality are what he cannot justly be tax'd with: For he has a discreet Woman to his Wife, who keeps a very strict Hand over him, and by giving him now and then due and wholsome Correction, makes him live within decent Bounds: For which, tho' he dares not mutter a Syllable within her hearing, for fear of the Strapado, he rails most bitterly at Petticoat Government, behind her back; and says, it is a burning Shame, that Women shou'd be suffer'd to have so great a Sway, when there are so many Good Men in Germany.

One thing I had like to have forgot, and that is, his most profound Skill in the Rules of Motion, especially that Branch of it, that relates to Dancing, which he defines, An Epitome of all Humane Learning. And I am told by an Intimate of his, that he has now ready for the Press, several curious Essays upon the several Parts of that truly Noble, and Comprehensive Science, wherein he proves by Arguments Phisical, Musical and Mathematical, that Dancing is not only the Primums Mobile of all Arts and Sciences; but that the Motion of the Sun, Moon, and other Celestial Bodies, is but a sort of a Cheshire Round.

Round, which they dance to the Musick of the Spheres. And moreover, that the principal Seat of humane Souls, especially those of the fair Sex, is in the Heels, of which he gives this as an experimental Demonstration, that whenever you take a Woman fast hold by them, 'tis ten to one but her Soul is your own; Besides several other new and valuable Discoveries, too many to be inserted here, which I pass Euphoniæ Gratia, to come to his Profession.

This was lately, what, in some Sense, might be term'd Martial; for he was a Serjeant in the Militia, and in a fair way of mounting in time to the Dignity of Provost, but having a natural Aversion to that French familiar Way, of hitting one another most Ungentleman like Blows, too frequent amongst Military Men, he judiciously laid aside his Halberd, and is now saluted by the Name of Doctor.

I cannot omit inserting here, that some have industriously spread a Report, that he formerly had got his living, as his Father had done before him, by Subverting, and New Modelling the Antient Constitution of English Beards in Church and State; And was, what we vulgarly call, a Barber, from the Latin word Barba, which, according cording to some Authors of Note and Antiquity, signifies, you know, that portion of hair, that grows upon humane Faces. But I do Bona Fide, look upon this part of the story to be altogether Apocriphal.

As to his present Circumstances, I can vouch for him, that he is above all such Calumnies, and in a fair way of soon having the Whip hand of all the Malignants that oppose him; For he has not only a Prospect of being Beadle of his Parish, if the Church-Wardens will but approve of his Election: But has already a Magisterial Recipe, with which he does not doubt, if you believe his pristed Bills, to cure all fuch of our Countrymen, as are troubled, with the Heart-burn, and Grumblings in the Gizzard, provided, they will but religioully abstain from mentioning the two faral Words, Nantz, and Bourdeaux, which, with immense labour and study, he has lately discover'd, to be impregnated with an occult Quality highly destructive to the English Commerce.

He extolls to the very Sky his new Method of preparing Steele-Pills, with which he proposes in Time to open all the obstructed Spleens of this Nation. This is also a Narcotick and a Nostrum: But his Arcanum Magnum is, his Emplastrum pro Nucha, which, I am fully satisfied, is a Specifick Catholicon for all Distempers if rightly applyed, and tyed on Secundum Artem under the left Ear. This he has studied ex professo for the present ease, and relief of such of his Friends as are not very well in their Minds; And I hope they will find the Benesit of it: It is a Noble Preparation of Hemp-seed, which he holds to be that true Seed of the right female Fern, so mightily cryed up by Modern Philosophers.

All these great points thus duly premis'd, it is not improbable, but that in the Frontis-piece of a well bound Book, You may one of these days, meet with this Great Man's Vera Effigies, handsomely cut, and underneath it, his Name Isaacus Bickerstaffius printed at full length, with an Anno Atat. &c. and the additional Title of Medicus: Which he may very well do, if what a modern Critick of stupendious Erudition observes in his Annotations upon Horace, be true, that the Words Medicus, and Madicus were

Writers, to signify the self same thing, tho' of late Days they are quite of a different Acceptation.

Having thus far, most Venerable Sage, trespass'd upon your Patience, and given you succinctly such Items as were absolutely necessary, I think my self oblig'd to acquaint you what Opinion some Persons have conceived of you and of your late Behaviour, and Correspondence with the Inimitable Mr. Bickerstaff.

There are, I can assure you, who with Considence have reported, That your new Acquaintance has debauch'd your Principles, and since his declaring himself of the Prosession, he has given you some bewitching Philter, by which he has gain'd an absolute Ascendant over your Will and Understanding, and instill'd such Notions into you as are altogether Heterodox, Antimonarchical, and unworthy of your Character. It has been spread Abroad, that like Sir Sydrophel of old, he has perswaded you, that the Clouds were enchanted Castles, fill'd with Arms, Ammunition, Magick Spells, and Sorcerers; and that with Squibs and Crackers and stink. Pots, you have attempted to Demolish them. I wish I cou'd recount all the Stories rold concerning you; how many ridiculous Pamphlets you have wrote; what Pranks you have plaid, what Goods you have dispos'd of, how many Sorts of Strong-Waters you are used to drink in twenty four Hours, and who has been forc'd to pay the Reckoning; what Deliriums you have run into; how you have asserted, that every Man in England is accountable to you, and, as the Representative of the whole British Nation, have drawn up Memorials concerning Her Majesty's Male Administration, and in the Name of all Her Subjects, demanded Justice of Her against Herself. One Thing; Sir, I more particularly remember they said of you, and which is scarcely possible to be believ'd, that you attempted to make an Englishman of Teague. It is strange, says I to some Gentlemen who were talking after this Manner, how one Man may be mistaken in another. I remember this old Man, he was one of my Patients, but little did I think he was such a dangerous Person as you have represented him; he always appear'd to me a good-natur'd, fociable, facetious Gentleman, and indeed I took him for one of those old Wits, who are naturally very costive, such as I have often met with in the Course of my Practice; for besides his being subject to a Fistula and Flux of the Hemorrhoids, the Sphincer of the Anus was broke with the immoderate Use of Suppositories. An Humorist he was indeed, 'tis true, and somewhat too tenacious of his own Opinion; but setting that aside, I don't know I have met with a Man of late Years, which seem'd to be more entertaining and inossensible Conversation; especially, says I, in the back Room at Button's.

Harry, the last of that Name, in Hanging-Sleeves; of your first Appearance in the Commonwealth of Learning, about March last; and how at these Years you had consecrated your Studies to the Service of the Ladies: In short, Sir, I conceal'd nothing that would tend to your Advantage, or take off the Calumnies that I was conscious were the inhospitable Endeavours of wicked Men to blacken you; and I now must beg your Leave to proceed regularly, and to knot the Thread of my Story where I broke it off in the Begining.

B 3 Mr.

Mr. Bickerstaff was scarce seated, when furning himself abruptly to the Company; Gentlemen, says be, This is a wonderful Age we live in, and a great many most surprifing things are daily to be met with in it, which escape the Observation of us, that are Learned, and yet are taken Notice of by the illiterate People of low Life. Mr. Sly, the Attorney, is just arrived from London, and has put me in mind of two most remarkable things, which, tho' I have rid that Way above a dozentimes, I never reflected on before. The one is, that, by exact Calculation, he has found the Road from London to Bath, to be every whit as long, as that from Bath to London. The other, that, let the Weather be never so uncertain, the Weathercock, for the most Part, points to that Corner that the Wind blows from.

A third thing he likewise told me, and indeed the most Material of all; but I made such haste to come and acquaint you with it; that I vow and prosess, I have quite forgot what it was: And yet, if my Memory does not fail me, it was of the greatest Consequence to this City of Bath, of any perhaps that has happen'd since the Revolution. But alas! Memoria hominisis but a leaky Vessel:

And

And it was the Saying of a very wife Statesman, that it is but bad walking in Slippery Weather: However, it is nosmall Comfort, to be able to recollect what is not possible to be remember'd. But it is not given to all Folks, I find, to be as wife as some, for this substantial Reason, That the longer we live, the older we grow. In short, Gentlemen, Quod dixi, dixi; I told you my Author, Hisce Oculis audivi. You may ask him, he is of Age, and an Attorney, who would no more tell an Untruth, than any one of his Profession.

The World, I hope, will allow that I am a Learned Man, and a Wise Man; and will always, I believe, lay that Stress upon my Sayings, as not to put any other Body's whatsoever in Competition with them, without the least Detriment to Characters or Prosessions. Besides, dato sed non Concesso, that I have forgot it, the most you can make on't, is, that such extraordinary Wits as mine, are generally attended with the Want of Memory, for which however, that of solid Judgment does always make ample Attonement.

And now perhaps, sir, when this Letter comes to be printed, it may be expected, that I should make good my Promise in the Title Page, concerning the Reception of your Present, and what Answer the Com. pany return'd to this more than common Rhetorician. Pardon me, O courteous Reader, for already detaining thee fo long; it is better for both you and me to be at Rest, after we have travel'd lovingly together for so many redious Pages. If I have Time and Opportunity, I may once more perhaps, to the Satisfaction of us both, uncase my Spectacles to peruse the Records, which, according to the late Canto, may afford us

Fit Matter for another Song,

I am not, I am sensible, the first Modern who has sell short of his Title Page; diverse and sundry Examples have I before my Eyes, of Poeis, Criticks, Commentators, Philosophers, and Politicians, who have play'd the same Game in all Places and in all Ages of the World. Several Precedents, most learned sage, could I deduce out of your own Works, and the Lucubrations of Mr. Birkerstaff, of Matters begun, but never ended, done and undone, to the Surprise prise of all your Readers; of Asts of Parliament, provid unalterable, by the same Power that made them, in an Advertisement, and dropt, because it was High Treason to affert it upon the Publication of the Criss.

Thus far, O Wise Man, with much Labour and Diligence have I brought this great Work, to the wished for Conclusion, and by carefully comparing the Coffee-House Oration with the Original, do find, that it is Religiously exact. Come, I therefore to appeal to your own Learned Self, whether the Great Bickerstaff was not too partial, in ascribing such Pre-eminence to those Speculations, which he writ, filed, and polish'd at his own Leisure: Whereas, the Time, which I employ'd in gathering Materials for this valuable Performance, was stolen from the Hours of my Natural Rest; after having, for the Good of my Country, spent all the livelong Day, as the Poets express themselves, In Iriviis, & Quadriviis, delivering my salutiferous Instructions to all Comers and Goers, and expos'd to the Rigour of the Seasons, under the wide Canopy of Heaven. But as I have this Comfort, that I underwent this great Fatigue, purely to rescue the Gity where where I generally reside, from the Imputation of Ingratitude, which otherwise it might be liable to; so I may, without Vanity, say, that I have, Uno Ictu, purchas'd to my self by it the Veneration of the Learned World, my own private Satisfaction, and the Thanks of my Fellow Citizens; whose hearty Acknowledgments likewise, as well as my own, I return you, most Antient Sage, for your desirable Present. And, as I do not question, but you will, for the Publick Good, and your own Credit, be at the Charges of Reprinting this Authentick Monument of your Libera. lity, so I desire, there may be Copies enough to furnish every Family in England with one. And because other Nations may also reap the Benefit of your Labours, I have not only prevail'd with my Learned Acquaintance, Mr. Griffith Evans ap Rice, Professor of the Cambrian Tongue at Oxford, to transsate them into Welch, but have sent also Copies of them into Ireland, to the renowned Antiquary Cormack O Cuillinane, and to old Gillaspick Mackentosh, chief Chronographer of the Highland Clans of Scotland; from whom I have lately receiv'd some curious Memoirs, with which I may perhaps, one of these Days oblige the the Commonwealth of Learning. And as I am well fatisfy'd of the Place which I have gain'd in your most wise E-steem, by this my vast Undertaking, so I beg Leave to assure you, that I shall be ready, uponall Occasions, to let the World know of your great Merit, and how much I am,

Learned, Wise, and Venerable Sir,

Tour most Humble,

Bath, Nov. 16.

And most devoted Servant,

A. Tripe, M. D.

POSTSCRIPT.

Had no sooner sinish'd my Letter, most venerable Sage, but reslecting on the Happineß, which we that are Learned, do now enjoy, by living in the same Age with you, I cou'd not but be pleas'd to think, that when Posterity shall peruse your Learned Productions, and enquire who were your Contemporaries, what a handsom mention will be made of my felf, upon the Account of my Correspondence with you. This, as it cou'd not but be a most sensible Satisfaction to me, so it naturally led me into the melancholly Thought, of what an irreparable Loss the Publick wou'd sustain by the Death of so valuable a Person; and remembring, that I heard of your being lately afflicted with a continual Dizzineß in your Head, and a sudden Dimness in your Sight, I immediately writ to my two worthy Friends, Sir William R -- d and Cornelius Tilb-rg, who, as they were formerly the Ornament of the Stage Itinerant, so now they are an Honour to the Profession, and beg'd of them to send me a full Account count of the Causes, Nature, Rise and Progress of your Malady. They acquitted themselves herein with a great Deal of Generosity and Erudition; and from their learned Observations I immediately comprehended, that the chief Origin of those Chronical Distempers proceeded from your immoderate Feeding upon Sallads; not only such as were pick'd and prepar'd by Master-Cooks, as Sidney and Lock; but likewise those that were hastily dish'd up by the Unskilful, Tutchin and Ridpath, &c. which creating too many Crudities in the Stomach, do continually transmit to the Upper Region a strange Chaos of black, beavy, and indigested Vapours, that do not only over power the innate Imbecillity of the Brain, but also obstruct the Passages of the Optick Nerves, from whence. those stubborn Affections of your Head and Eyes do naturally follow.

Hereupon I zealously apply'd my self; Night and Day, to consult the most valuable Nostrum's of all our Celebrated Oracles; and with Joy and Satisfaction have excerpted from them a Medicine of the greatest Vertue; which in the Name of the Worshipful Mr. Mayor, and the Rest of his Brethren, I have sent you by the the Carrier in Three Gallipots, as a grateful Return for your late Present.

This, by the Natural Antipathy of the Ingredients, will work powerfully upon the Crudities, correct the peccant Humours, and you will soon find the powerful Effects of it. It is a Sudorifick, Diaretick, Carminative, and a soporifick. It immediately puts all the Humours in a Ferment, separates the Good from the Bad, attracts to it self, by an occult sympathy, all the Rebellious Particles, dissolves them in a Thrice, and scowers all before it like a scavinger. Take the Quantity of a Nutmee horis Medicis.

Outwardly you must apply to the Region of the Heart, a Plaister of the Rubrum Henrici, and wash your Eyes twice a Day with the Opthalmick Water I prescrib'd to you, when at Bath.

But in case your Distemper shou'd prove so obstinate; as not to yield to these most sovereign Remedies; your last Resuge must be, a Cataplasm of Hemp, apply'd Cravat-wise to your Neck, which, tho' in its Operation it be somewhat violent, yet it is an installible infallible One, if rightly used; according to that celebrated Observation of one of our Learned Predecessors.

This with a firk will do your Work, and and cure you o're and o're;
Read, Judge, and Try, and if you Die, never believe me more.

Let your Dyet be regular, and drink good Wines, and of the best Growth: But, by all Means, you must renounce Holland, Geneva and Grunswick Mum: For one corrupts your Lungs, and the other stupifies your Intellects.

If you observe exactly the Method of these Prescriptions, as I hope you will, I don't doubt, but that in a little Time, you will be generous enough, to acknowledge, that our Present is a Match for your own; and that whatever Advantage you may have over us in Years and Learning, you have none in the Point of Liberality.

Tours,

Ut Supra.
